

FEEDING- Kittens

Kittens are busy, inquisitive animals and use huge amounts of energy during their rapid growth. They also have very little energy reserves like fat, compared to adult cats. They also has a higher protein and mineral requirements.

We have found that the easiest way to meet a kitten's growth requirements is to feed a complete and balanced "kitten" or "growth" diet such as those offered by Iams or Hills Science Diet.

Surprisingly it is often cheaper to feed a premium diet than to feed canned or dry supermarket cat food.

Talk to your vet or one of the nurses about the best food for your kitten.
